The results could be sending a complex signal to Wall Street, as the two frontrunners represent two vastly different potential futures for artificial intelligence in finance. DeepSeek is reportedly backed by a Chinese quantitative hedge fund, suggesting its success may stem from specialized financial data and expert fine-tuning—an evolutionary step for today's data-driven firms.

He noted CalPERS is "basically too scared to invest directly into Bitcoin" and has "a duty to hold Bitcoin in self-custody so the public is actually holding bitcoins, and not promises from middlemen."

"The broader setup remains bullish, with a prolonged government shutdown likely to continue driving interest in hard assets and supporting demand for Bitcoin as an alternative store of value," Joe DiPasquale, CEO of crypto asset manager BitBull Capital, told Decrypt on Friday.

Derivatives often flag trouble early. When funding rates swing sharply positive (longs paying shorts) and open interest (OI) builds near resistance, positioning becomes crowded: the perfect setup for a squeeze in the opposite direction.

Cross-border payment is one of the important application scenarios of blockchain technology. The traditional cross-border payment process is complex, involving multiple intermediaries, with long settlement time and high fees. In contrast, cross-border payments based on blockchain technology can realize direct peer-to-peer transactions, greatly simplifying the process, shortening settlement time, and reducing costs. Currently, several countries and financial institutions have begun to try using blockchain technology for cross-border payments. With the continuous maturity of technology and the improvement of regulatory frameworks, blockchain cross-border payments are expected to become the mainstream cross-border payment method in the future.

The company said SearchGPT is currently available as a prototype to 10,000 test users at launch. The service is powered by the GPT-4 family of models.
