"We cannot empower the opponents of digital assets to rewrite the rules in their favor, stifle innovation, and increase costs," Lummis wrote. "Throwing up barriers would drive entrepreneurs overseas and weaken America's leadership in financial technology."

He warned against loosening traditional corporate rules for crypto treasuries, noting they protect against "volatility arbitrage shells disguised as leveraged Bitcoin plays" that led to the recent retail losses.

Experts say this automation is a crucial source of protection against "the rising tide of software supply chain attacks targeting cryptocurrency," and proves effective even if malware isn't accompanied by social engineering attacks.

ReversingLabs says the malicious packages attempted to overwrite legitimate commands in order to extract sensitive database files.
