Investors piled back into Bitcoin ETFs and their Ethereum counterparts Tuesday, reversing days of outflows, although the fresh investments failed to give the two largest cryptocurrencies by market value a long-lasting bump.

However, market conditions remain choppy with digital asset investment products seeing $513 million in outflows last week following a Binance liquidity cascade on October 10 that triggered nearly $20 billion in liquidations, including roughly $16.7 billion in long positions, according to a CoinShares report.

“The launch signals the advancing institutional acceptance of Bitcoin as an investable asset class by both major regulators and global asset managers,” Fabian Dori, Chief Investment Officer at Sygnum, told Decrypt.

And last month, only one in four of the 1,900 investors polled by Binance Australia estimated that Bitcoin will top $150,000 in the next six months.

“We have seen crypto firms react positively to our financial promotions rules and regulations; however, where we still see poor practices, we will not hesitate to take action where firms appear to be breaching our rules.”

While the previously explained part of the system is trustless, some parts remain non-trustless. Per the white paper, Babylon’s Bitcoin vault liquidations utilize whitelisted liquidators to monitor the price and vault state, resulting in a liquidation system that is not permissioned and introduces trust assumptions.
