Blockchain technology needs clearer rules, too

Ether derivatives data showed moderate unease among bullish traders, but whale positioning suggested most were not expecting a deeper decline. The key question was whether the $3,700 support would hold as macroeconomic risks intensify.

The character, developed by comedian and technologist Eline Van der Velden—who spun off Xicoia from her production company Particle6—was unveiled last week at the Zurich Summit during the Zurich Film Festival in Switzerland, and immediately drew online attention. Van der Velden said multiple talent agents are already interested in signing the artificial personality.

Tether said its donation to OpenSats, which funds the development of free and open-source Bitcoin software, will support the nonprofit's operations and grant-making efforts.

Also, the candlesticks have started to show signs of extreme FOMO. A parabolic chart is already hyperbullish, but a parabolic chart in which the bodies of the latest candlesticks are moving faster than the support, is probably too good to be true. Common sense says there must be a correction for markets to find some balance.

Bitcoin infrastructure company Babylon Labs claimed to have developed a system that enables native Bitcoin to be used as collateral for borrowing assets on Ethereum.
