The ETH monthly futures premium compared to spot markets slipped to 4%, below the 5% neutral threshold. Traders' sentiment had already been shaken by the flash crash on Oct. 10, and the last notable bullish phase was in early February. Ether traders appear increasingly doubtful about the strength of any lasting bullish momentum.

But not this time. Analysts at the British multinational bank Standard Chartered, who have long been bullish on Bitcoin, don't think it stops here either. Geoff

Kendrick, the bank's global head of digital assets, said in an investor note published Friday that he expects the price of Bitcoin to reach at least $135,000 in the near term and top $200,000 before the end of the year.

The US dollar's hegemony is over, as evidenced by China's recent announcement of export controls on rare earth minerals, a critical component in electronics manufacturing and military defense applications, according to analyst Luke Gromen.

"If you want to say that cryptocurrency is this shining horse, 'an angel from on high,' you're bullshitting," he said. "You have this permissionless open platform that has a lot of different things going on that most people do not understand."

The billionaire, who foresaw the 2008 financial meltdown, described it as the "traumatic last phase" of a "big debt cycle," where over the course of history, excessive debt has culminated in an economic contraction and systematic crisis.
