The results could be sending a complex signal to Wall Street, as the two frontrunners represent two vastly different potential futures for artificial intelligence in finance. DeepSeek is reportedly backed by a Chinese quantitative hedge fund, suggesting its success may stem from specialized financial data and expert fine-tuning—an evolutionary step for today's data-driven firms.

The company plans to use the net proceeds from the PIPE to implement a “yield-focused treasury strategy with significant direct and BNB equivalent exposure,” according to CFA Chief Investment Officer Patrick Horsman.

As the first successful application of blockchain technology, cryptocurrencies have gone through more than ten years of development. From the initial Bitcoin to the current wide variety of tokens, the cryptocurrency market has experienced multiple booms and busts. Nevertheless, the ideas of decentralization and disintermediation represented by cryptocurrencies are profoundly influencing the traditional financial system. More and more institutional investors are beginning to pay attention to and participate in the cryptocurrency market, and governments of various countries are also actively exploring regulatory frameworks for cryptocurrencies to promote their healthy development.

The campaign's gamified nature has also led to community engagement across social platforms, with participants sharing their progress, NFT achievements and referral milestones. This activity is generating continued interest in the campaign as it moves into its next phases.

But not this time. Analysts at the British multinational bank Standard Chartered, who have long been bullish on Bitcoin, don't think it stops here either. Geoff Kendrick, the bank's global head of digital assets, said in an investor note published Friday that he expects the price of Bitcoin to reach at least $135,000 in the near term and top $200,000 before the end of the year.

Liquidations hinge on a price oracle, so they inherit the oracle's accuracy, timeliness, and censorship-resistance risks. If the oracle is wrong or delayed, the system makes the wrong call. Oracle providers with existing relationships with Babylon Labs, Band Protocol and Pyth Network had not responded to Cointelegraph's request for comment by publication.
