This technological progress has fueled the continued adoption of stablecoins, fiat-pegged digital tokens that can move across the internet without relying on traditional payment rails. The report cited $9 trillion in stablecoin transactions over the past 12 months — an 87% increase from the previous year.

However, the catastrophic losses of models like Gemini highlight the significant risks that make financial institutions wary. A primary concern is the "black box" nature of these systems, where the reasoning behind a trade is often opaque and unexplainable. This lack of transparency is a major hurdle for regulatory compliance and risk management, as establishing trust in a model's decisions is a critical and ongoing effort.

Galaxy Digital reported strong third-quarter earnings, driven primarily by higher trading activity and continued expansion in asset management, signaling steady institutional interest in crypto-focused financial services.

Institutional momentum builds

Part of this growth is being driven by improvements in underlying blockchain infrastructure, with some networks now processing over 3,400 transactions per second, a more than 100-fold increase in throughput over the past five years.

In an interview with the Financial Times, the Bridgewater Associates founder linked a rise in the price of digital assets and gold to America's overwhelming debt burden, which isn't improving, according to a transcript of the conversation that he posted to X on Wednesday.
