The technique, called “EtherHiding,” emerged in 2023 and is typically used in conjunction with social engineering techniques, such as reaching out to victims with fake employment offers and high-profile interviews, directing users to malicious websites or links, according to Google.

Admit it or not, software is deployed by developers and used by communities for certain purposes. And when hackers at cross purposes exploit the software to take things from those communities, some of the victims will appeal to the government for help. And sometimes those governments will respond by sending men with guns to restrain the hackers and imprison them.

Details of the deal were shared with Decrypt under embargo until Wednesday morning in New York, but were first reported by The Wall Street Journal, hours before the announcement was supposed to lift. Specific terms of the deal remain undisclosed.
