I Wrote to customer support to get help with a faulty Fire TV stick 4k, stuck on update, known issue.After troubleshooting with 5 different agents, they offered me a refund on a newly purchased new gen FireTV 4k If I purchase it right then.I ordered the product and was promised that upon delivery the amount paid will be automatically wired on my debit car and was advised to dispose of the defective unit.The package arrived next day. After on Saturday.No sign of the money though.So on Wednesday I've contacted customer support again.They apologized and after chatting for 2hour 20' realized that I will not be getting my money back, the new agent stated that the support representative that tricked me to buy a new product in exchange of a refund was wrong and falsely promised me a refund.I ordered a brand new controller and the package never came (its still tracking to this day with no updates for delivery or notifications on the whereabouts of the package)Amazon is best online shopping website. It's user friendly. You can available different offers and also you can free of cost return if you don't like product. It's fantastic online shopping platformWhat joke of a Co, but like so many mega rich Co (that apparently get out of paying UK tax) their service (try and get a human on the phone) and products are terrible.1 - their constant miss match changing when you buy a number of products in ONE transaction, get charged on your cc seperately, so you cannot match the original order to your statement, and when you add seperate charge on the statement together, they never match what the original order on your acc says was the total - WONDER HOW AMAZON IS SOOO RICH ???. their online Prime Video, happy to charge, but trying to stop the constant error codes that prevent you watching what you have paid for - ie get a human being to answer the phone. Joke 2.So yep we will all continue to use Amazon, as there is no current competitor with their set up, so rant over, just be warned - give up on Prime, cancel it, and watch your bills.. is going somewhere ?Yesterday failed delivery at 9.51 pm i was at home i never left the house, so tracking update was false.Today another item should have been delivered, the d48ver knocked handed me the goods from previous day, said he couldn't find my small package he went back to his van to look, then drove away and marked package handed to resident, customer service will not replace or refund until Friday!Know I know delivery drivers are allowed to lie to customers, because customers dont matter, will recommend that anyone who wants to order from Amazon think carefully.Today (Tuesday 3 December 2024) I was waiting for RM to collect my return to Amazon. I was waiting for the call or whatever from them but everything I got was the following lying email: "Unfortunately, we couldnt collect due to the following reasons: QY864796558GB - The parcel wasn't available when we called (3 December 2024 at 11.58am)."They never called which I can prove. Ive checked online and found there are many others who experienced the same lie from royal mail. So the conclusion is that either the RM or Amazon are responsible for the fact as Amazon is not happy to accept returns. Well, I will stop vbuying things from amazon and using RM.Date of experience: 03 December 2024I have always been happy with Amazon (aside from the fact returns could be a smoother process in Ireland) until today. I had two accounts, UK and US, but they were not linked as prime membership, order history, etc. didnt show on US account and emails received are from different email addresses with different registered companies shown. As I could not connect prime to my US account I decided to cancel it. However, this also cancelled my UK account despite them being separate and correspondence received in relation to cancelling the US account not mentioning cancelling my UK account. I now cant access my ring doorbell, prime tv or amazon for UK and have lost money as I have paid in advance for subscriptions. I called within 15 minutes of account access being removed and was on the phone for 1 hour and 7 minutes having consistently being put on hold and was told there is nothing that can be done. At no point was I offered a call back when the issue had been looked into and the agent insisted I stay on the call while she typed up notes even though my call was not going to be further transferred and I explained that I was abroad so the call would be expensive. I assume that was so another call didnt drop in but poor customer service. It was mentioned on the call that the agent could see my account yet it cant be reinstated - I just dont understand. Im really unhappy with the lack of clarity in relation to closure of the account and cant see how it is compliant under GDPR. There is no way my data was permanently deleted so quickly and I dont know why it cant be reinstated considering I didnt consent to erasure of my UK account and requested it be reinstated.I BOUGHT KARCHER K7 ON AMAZON DE.THEY JUST DROPPED IT IN FRONT OF MY DOOR WHEN I WAS NOT AT HOME AND I EVEN HAD ANY CHANCE TO CHECK IT AND REFUSE!!PACKAGING WAS DAMAGED AND PRODDUCT DID NOT WORKIT WAS USED BEFORE AND RE-SOLD TO ME!!! PAID 50 FOR DELIVERY AND THEY DEMANDED ANOTHER 50 FOR RETURN!WHEN I TRIED TO MAKE COMPLAINT THEY FO NOT ANSWERED!IDO NOT RECOMMEND THIS COMPANY!!!!Yes, I agree with it its isn't amazon's mistake but the seller who is marking. But amazon applies policies of 7 days returns and refunds. You should thank amazon for such policies.Fast and Reliable Delivery. Amazon UK has always satisfied me with its fast and reliable delivery service. I appreciate the wide range of products available, often at competitive prices. The Prime membership benefits, like next-day delivery and access to Prime Video, are a significant plus. However, I occasionally encounter issues with product packaging, which can be frustrating. Overall, the convenience and efficiency make it my go-to online store.especially when the packaging isn't sufficient to protect the item during shipping. The user-friendly website, excellent customer service, and consistent delivery performance are impressive. The Product Durability in Amazon is the best. Customer Service already top notch. There aren't any hidden charges at all. Despite these minor drawbacks, the overall convenience, competitive pricing, and extensive product selection make Amazon UK my go-to online store. Whether Im shopping for electronics, books, or household items, I can always count on Amazon to deliver a seamless shopping experience.I am trying without luck to have contact with customer services at Amazon - can't find a phone number anywhere. 3rd kindle I have bought that has failed me! Does anyone have a number?There is also a dedicated number for KindleHope this helps and you get it sorted out. I think perhaps the fact that there is a dedicated number says it all !Why can't we get through to customer services? They have given me a phone number but no one to talk to.Jasonundlop, Are you serious?Why didn't I think of that? If I want an answer to an Amazon business problem go to Google Brilliant???????????????? The objective of Five Nights at Freddy's Survive Til 6AM is to keep all of the Animatronic characters out of your office until 6 AM. Place the gameboard in the middle of the table. If you are playing the two player game, place the 2-Player side face up. For the one player game place the 1-Player side face up. Set the Power dice in the middle of the table where both players can reach them. Each player chooses one of the two colors and takes the corresponding Camera Monitor cards, Power Dial, and Reference card. If you are playing the one player game, the player should take the orange components. Turn your Power Dial so 100% is visible. Look thiois. This player has two cards left in front of them. They will have to resolve these two What Was That? cards. For details on how to resolve each card, see the corresponding section in the Camera Monitor cards section. At the end of the phase you will look at each of the locations. If a locations pile is empty, move each pile below it forward one Area 11 cards Show Stage 10 cards Shuffle the Animatronic cards into the above piles as follows:Pirate Cove Add one Animatronic card. Dining Area Add one Animatronic card. Show Stage Add two Animatronic cards. Sort the Clock cards based on their times. Create a pile starting with the Start card, 12:00 AM card, and so on until the 5:30 AM card is on the bottom of the pile. Five Nights at Freddy's Survive Til 6AM is played over a number of rounds. Each round consists of three phases. Monitor Cameras React Resolve To begin each round you will remove the top card from the Clock card pile. Each time you remove a card it will move the clock forward. To start the first round one of the players takes the Start card off the top of the Clock pile. The current time is 12:00 AM. Each player will then flip cards from their piles at the same time. You will start by flipping over the top card from the Hallway pile and placing it below the deck of cards at that location. You will then move onto the next location doing the same thing. This continues until you have revealed a card at the Show Stage location. Both players have flipped over a card(s) from each of their locations. Should you ever reveal an Animatronic card, you will reveal another card at the same location. You will keep revealing new cards until you reveal a card that isnt an Animatronic. This player has flipped over the Freddy card. Since they flipped over an Animatronic card, they had to flip over another card. If a pile ever runs out of cards, you will not have to flip cards from that pilefor the rest of the game. To start the react phase, the two players will compare the amount of power left on their Power Dials. The player with more power gets to react first. If the two players have the same amount of power, the player with a star on their dial reacts first. Both of the players have the same amount of power. The orange player has the star on their dial for the current power level, so they will go first this round. During the react phase you will choose which cards you want to react to or if you want to conserve power. When it is your turn to react you can choose zero, one or two of your face up cards to react to. You can only react to face up Animatronic or What Was That? cards. If there are multiple face up cards in one location, you have to react to each card individually. When choosing which cards to react to, check the Camera Monitor Cards section below for more details on what each card does. This player has five cards face up in front of them. They need to choose which of the cards they want to react to. They cannot react to the Power Depletion card, but it will cost them five power if they react to any of the other cards. The player can choose to react to up to two of the other cards. Once you have chosen what cards you are going to react to, you will roll the Power Dice. For each card you decide to react to, you will roll one of the dice. For example if you choose to react to two cards, you will roll both dice. The number(s) you roll on the dice determine how much power you will spend on your turn. If there are Power Depletion cards in play, they will increase the amount of power you will have to pay when you roll the die/dice. You will reduce the power on your Power Dial the amount you rolled on the die/dice plus any Power Depletion. Then discard the cards that you reacted to (except for Animatronic cards). This player has decided to react to the Freddy card and the What Was That? card in the location closest to the office. They rolled two dice for the cards and ended up rolling ten. Adding in the five from the Power Depletion card, the player uses fifteen of their power this turn. This player turns their dial to use fifteen of their power due to the two cards they reacted to. Should you not have enough power to pay what was rolled on the dice, you cannot react to any cards this round. You will keep your power at its previous level. After you have reacted to cards in the previous phase, you will move onto resolving any cards you didnt react to. Discard any Power Depletion and Empty Room cards to your office. They are removed from the rest of the game. This player has a Power Depletion card in front of them. During the Resolve phase they will discard it. You will then resolve any of the remaining face-up cards starting with the player that started the previous phase. You will begin resolving cards from the Hallway and move from location to location until you reach the Show Stage. Once you have resolved a card, you will discard them into your office. This player has two cards left in front of them. They will have to resolve these two What Was That? cards. For details on how to resolve each card, see the corresponding section in the Camera Monitor cards section. At the end of the phase you will look at each of the locations. If a locations pile is empty, move each pile below it forward one location towards the office. There are no cards in the Dining Area. The cards from the Show Stage location are moved to the Dining Area. If both players are still in the game and the time hasn't reached 6 AM, you will play a new round in the same way as the previous round. When you react to an Animatronic character card, you shut the door on them immediately. You will shuffle the card back into the pile at its current location. If you choose not to react to an Animatronic character card, you will shuffle the card into the next location closer to the office. This player has an Animatronic card in front of them. If they choose to react to it, it will get shuffled into the pile at the next location. Should the Animatronic character card already be in the Hallway and you dont react to it, you lose the game. The Freddy card is in the Hallway outside of the office. If the player does not react to it, it will move into the office. If this happens the orange player loses the game. When you choose to react to a What Was That? card, you turn on the light. You will discard the card directly into your office. It has no other effect on the rest of the game. There are two different types of What Was That? cards which are treated differently when your resolve them instead of reacting to them. If the arrows on the card are pointing towards the side, you will take one card from the top of the pile at the location the What Was That? was drawn from. Count up the number of arrows on the card. Move the card the corresponding number of locations towards your office. Place the card on the top of the corresponding pile. You cannot look at the card. There are two What Was That? cards in front of this player. If they react to the card(s), they will be discarded. If they choose not to react to them, the top card from their current location pile moves forward. The card in in the first location will move a card forward two locations. The card in the second location will move a card forward one location. If the card moves to your office, you will reveal the card immediately. If it is an Animatronic, you immediately lose the game. Should it be any other card, you will discard it. This player did not react to the What Was That? card. Because they didnt react, this pushes the top card from the locations pile into the next location. Since it was pushed to the office it is turned over. Since it was only a What Was That? card, it will be discarded. If the card would have been an Animatronic card, the player would have lost the game. If the arrows on the What Was That? card are pointing downwards, reveal the top card from the corresponding location pile. You will resolve the cards effect immediately as if the card was not reacted to in phase two. This player decided not to react to the What Was That? card in the first location. Since they didnt react to it, they will turn over the next card in the corresponding location. The Bonnie card was revealed. The player cant react to the Bonnie card so it will move to the pile at the next location. You cannot react to Power Depletion cards. These cards have an effect if you react to other cards though. If you decide to react to any other card, you must reduce your battery power by an additional five power. Should you choose not to react to any cards this round, the card has no effect. This player decided to roll two dice. They rolled five on both dice. They also had a Power Depletion card face up in front of them. This adds five more to the power that they have to use. This player has to use a total of 15 power this turn. If there are two or more Power Depletion cards in play, you will have to spend five additional power for each Power Depletion card. You cannot react to Empty Room cards. These cards have no effect on the game. You will keep playing rounds until either the time reaches 6 AM or one player has been eliminated from the game. If an Animatronic enters a players office, they are eliminated from the game. The other player wins. Foxy has reached the orange players office. The orange player has lost the game. The orange player wins the game. Otherwise if the time reaches 6 AM, the game ends. The player that has more power, wins the game. Both players survived until 6:00 AM. The players will compare how much power they used during the game. Since the orange player has more power remaining, they have won the game. The single player game is played the same as the two player game. The one main difference is just that you are trying to survive until 6 AM. If you survive you win the game.
