The “flipping,” the idea that Ethereum will one day surpass Bitcoin’s market capitalization, has been a topic of debate for years but has gained renewed attention in recent months.

“In line with WNBA Arena Security Standards, any fan who intentionally throws an object onto the court will be immediately ejected and face a minimum one-year ban in addition to being subject to arrest and prosecution by local authorities,” it said in a statement.

But despite the optimism around BNB, the world's largest crypto exchange by trading volume has faced backlash from users in recent weeks over its performance during the market crash.

Butterfill said that Bitcoin's "correction, and the subsequent liquidity cascades seen a week ago," are still reverberating through the industry, prompting some crypto-natives to further liquidate, adding that crypto market sentiment was generally bearish.

He warned against loosening traditional corporate rules for crypto treasuries, noting they protect against "volatility arbitrage shells disguised as leveraged Bitcoin plays" that led to the recent retail losses.

When you've been around markets long enough, you start to see patterns. The tools we trade on and the rails we build on are never static. In crypto, one of the biggest shifts happening right now is at the base layer.
