He noted CalPERS is "basically too scared to invest directly into Bitcoin" and has "a duty to hold Bitcoin in self-custody so the public is actually holding bitcoins, and not promises from middlemen."

In between are the hybrids, those L1s that want to be open enough to attract the crypto-native crowd but structured enough to keep institutions comfortable. This middle ground is where some of the most interesting battles will be fought — because it's the one place both sides might meet.

This conservative approach effectively took it out of the running for major gains, but also protected it from the significant downturns experienced by some of its rivals, positioning it as a more stable, if unprofitable, participant. Meanwhile, Claude Sonnet was comfortably in third place among the six contenders.
