Thus, other on-chain analysts have recently floated the idea that the $14 billion worth of BTC that disappeared in 2020 was potentially never stolen at all; or, alternatively, that the heist was pulled off by the U.S. government, or hackers working for the government.

Miners have often had to sell coins or branch into different industries—like high-performance computing for artificial intelligence—to cover operational costs.

Also, not every coin came from the market; geothermal mining reportedly added around 474 BTC over three years (small in energy terms, but still additive).
