The character, developed by comedian and technologist Eline Van der Velden—who spun off Xicoia from her production company Particle6—was unveiled last week at the Zurich Summit during the Zurich Film Festival in Switzerland, and immediately drew online attention. Van der Velden said multiple talent agents are already interested in signing the artificial personality.

The firm also offers Bitcoin and XRP-themed credit cards, all of which offer up to 4% back on purchases in instant crypto rewards.

“If you want to say that cryptocurrency is this shining horse, ‘an angel from on high,’ you’re bullshitting,” he said. “You have this permissionless open platform that has a lot of different things going on that most people do not understand.”

It currently maintains multiple connections to the sporting world, highlighted by backers like the New York Yankees-owning Steinbrenner family and current and former NHL players including Tyler Seguin, Jason Arnott, and Ales Hemsky.

“These protections have already proven to be successful in addressing other types of non-consensual imagery, and we’ve now built the same capabilities for fake explicit images as well,” Google said. “These efforts are designed to give people added peace of mind, especially if they’re concerned about similar content about them popping up in the future.”
