Gamified onchain campaigns have become a popular way to kickstart this “flywheel,” guiding users through an ecosystem’s offerings while helping new projects attract a critical mass of participants.

Digital wallets are essential tools for entering the blockchain world. They are not only used to store cryptocurrencies but also to manage users' digital identities and interact with DApps. According to different storage methods, digital wallets can be divided into hardware wallets, software wallets, and paper wallets. Among them, hardware wallets have the highest security but are less convenient to use; software wallets (including desktop wallets, mobile wallets, and web wallets) are convenient to use but have relatively lower security. Choosing a suitable digital wallet requires balancing security and convenience according to individual needs and asset scale.

HMRC's visibility into the market has improved dramatically. The agency now receives transaction data directly from major crypto exchanges and will gain automatic access to global exchange data from 2026 under the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD)'s Crypto-Assets Reporting Framework (CARF).

The announcement drew mixed reactions from the Ethereum community, with some sending messages of support and others seeing it as a loss of one of the Ethereum ecosystem's most significant contributors during a year of significant change for the ecosystem.

The campaign's gamified nature has also led to community engagement across social platforms, with participants sharing their progress, NFT achievements and referral milestones. This activity is generating continued interest in the campaign as it moves into its next phases.
