Both packages have now been removed and cannot be downloaded, meaning they no longer pose a risk to developers.

According to data from Nansen, the price of ETH was $3,857 at the time of publication, having surged by more than 9% in the previous seven days.

This surge in activity also served as a real-world stress test for the Algorand blockchain. With tens of thousands of participants generating nearly 300,000 transactions, the network maintained its performance. Users experienced the platform's "low fees, instant transaction finality and zero transaction failures" firsthand.

That state of affairs could now change imminently. Waller's plan would allow U.S. institutions focused on "payments innovation"—aka, crypto and other emerging financial technologies—to gain their own access to the Fed's services, as opposed to depending on third-party, master account-holding banks.
